

Legacy Line Driver Migration Solution - Payment Processing Company

A credit card and ATM payment processing company wanted to convert a legacy line driver application hosted on a mainframe to a three tier solution. The primary objective was to establish disaster recovery and to build a reliable and scalable platform to withstand large volume of transactions including future growth and to improve response time drastically.

Solution

After a thorough analysis, PERI with its extensive expertise in payment systems and open source platforms came up with a comprehensive three tier solution. The solution included design, architect, develop, test, deploy, performance tune, support, knowledge transfer and production support.
